REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT

To the School Board and Citizens of Strafford:

This year has been marked by several noteworthy celebrations of outstanding persons and events in the history of education in this country.

The Tercentenary of Harvard University commemorated the founding of that institution, described in "New England's First Fruits," published 300 years ago: "After God had carried us safe to New England and we had builded our houses, provided necessaries for our liveli-hood, rear'd convenient places for God's worship and settled the Civil Government, one of the next things we longed for, and looked after was to advance Learning and perpetuate it to posterity. . . ."

HORACE MANN (1796-1859) one hundred years ago gave up his career as a lawyer and his presidency of the Massachusetts Senate to serve for twelve years as the first Secretary of the State Board of Education of that Commonwealth. His tireless advocacy of the free common schools earned him the title of "Father of Public School Education." He founded the first Normal School in America and crowned his life by serving as President of Antioch College in Ohio. Among his immortal sayings are the following:

"The common school is the greatest discovery made by man."

"A patriot is known by the interest he takes in the education of the young."

"Be ashamed to die until you have won some victory for humanity."

WILLIAM HOLMES McGUFFEY, whose centennial is being observed, through his famous "Readers," taught previous generations to read and guided to ideals that are still potent. By the truly scientific method of trying out his selections on actual groups of boys and girls, he laid a solid foundation for a long popularity with children and educators. Some citizens of Strafford who read this will remember with pleasure "The Lame Dog," "The Birds Set Free," "Harry and the Guidepost," "Meddlesome Matty," and others. A biography and a book of selections have recently been published.

Citizens of Strafford and neighboring towns are beginning to consider more and more seriously the improvement in school advantages that might come from a consolidation of grades by means of a centralized building or some rearrangement using present buildings. The one-room school of eight grades with as high as 36 pupils is becoming less and less acceptable as a permanent organization in our rural communities. Meanwhile standard schools are being maintained, with instruction, health supervision, and other activities faithfully carried on. Electric lights have now been installed in all three schoolhouses, saving eyesight and making possible more continuous and efficient work, especially in cloudy weather or during the short days.

The percentage of attendance at Austin-Cate Academy last year was 98.89, the highest in Union 44. In the "Future Farmers of America" original prize speaking contest vocational school in the state, Orson Lowell won first place and a gold medal for his essay on "The New Hampshire."

Respectfully submitted,

CHESTER W. DOE,
Superintendent of Schools
